Investment in new road surfaces and street lighting

Residents of York Terrace West and Nottingham Terrace are the latest terraces to have an upgrade to their road surface and street lighting as part of the CEPC's infrastructure investment programme. Following the resurfacing of Park Square East just before Christmas, work at York Terrace West is now well under way and the new red surface should be completed around the first week in June.

Parking Permits change format

CEPC Parking Permits are changing to a new square format this year and, from now on, will be reissued to residents each year in May. Responding to feedback from permit users, the new format and process will help to overcome some of the issues of misuse and abuse that were experienced with the old system. There are still no charges to residents for the first issue of their annual permit, and we hope that the revised format will be easier to read and use. We are also developing a new format of Short Stay and Visitors Permit for use by residents, both of which should be available within the next couple of months.

Letters seeking confirmation of your vehicles details have now been sent out to all residents and you will be seeing the new format permits appearing on vehicles very soon. If you have not received your registration details confirmation letter, or have any queries about our permits or the new system, please get in contact with us at info@cepc.org.uk

As part of the upgrade, the pavements at the exit to Allsop Place are also being re-worked to make them more accessible and easier to use. New street lighting power supplies and lanterns are then being installed to complete the picture. Those familiar with the roadway will notice that the old speed humps will have been removed as part of the works. The CEPC will be carrying out a survey of residents to decide if the humps are really needed and should be reinstated, or if the road should be left without them.

Spring comes to the CEPC gardens

Residents will have noticed the unusually long flowering season for the daffodils this year, stretching from January right through to May. Spring enables the CEPC gardening team to showcase their creative planting, most conspicuous in Park Square and Crescent gardens. But the Snowy Mespilus (below) in the CEPC's Stirling Square garden, just off Pall Mall, are particularly resplendent at the moment. The Pagoda Lilly (above, right) is often considered a fussy plant requiring exacting conditions; however this variety has found Park Square to be quite accommodating. We hope residents will enjoy the introduction of new varieties of lilacs; these fragrant species will only be in flower for a few more weeks.

The easiest and quickest way to get the latest CEPC news is to follow us on Twitter using @CEPavingCOMM. You can get up-to-date information about any works in your terrace or the surrounding roads, plus news about issues affecting the park. Just below are some recently tweeted forget-me-nots - to remind you to join us on Twitter!

Are dogs really a problem?

As the only CEPC gardens where dogs are allowed access, Park Square and Crescent garden users are being given the opportunity this spring to give their views about dog related issues. A survey asking for feedback was circulated following increasing problems from fouling and dogs being let off their leads. It is hoped that the results of the survey will help us decide how best to tackle the problems, without upsetting too many four legged friends.
